AMERICAN TRANSFER PROGRAM

A SEAMLESS PATHWAY TO A CLASSIC AMERICAN EDUCATION

& Concordia College-New York The American College - Madurai

BEST OF BOTH WORLDS

To enter the American Transfer Program (ATP), students must first be accepted to The American College under their normal admission process and meet the established criteria. ATP provides several options for accepted students who are interested in obtaining an American degree. Students will study at The American College for 4 semesters pursuing coursework in Bachelors of Commerce, Economics, English, Visual Communication, Business Administration, Botany, Zoology, Biochemistry, Microbiology, Religion, Philosophy & Sociology and all other relevant courses of study and then transfer to Concordia for 3 semesters to obtain their American undergraduate degree from Concordia College-New York. During the fourth semester, they will begin their transfer application process to Concordia. If accepted by Concordia, students will be issued an I-20 to apply for their US student visa. Concordia's office located in T. Nagar will assist the students in completing all the necessary paperwork as well as applying for their US visas.

After completing their undergraduate degree, students can opt to pursue accelerated Masters programs either at Concordia College, or its affiliate, Valparaiso University in Indiana and complete their PG degree in 2 semesters, rather than the normal 6 semesters.

ATP minimizes the cost of an American education by allowing students to study in India for two years. It also minimizes the risks for students enrolled in this program. If for some unforeseen reason a student is unable to transfer to Concordia, that student will be allowed to continue their studies at The American College for the third year and earn their degree locally.
