The object of the College is “to give students of all creeds a liberal Christian higher education to train them in the service of God and humanity and to do such other things as are in harmony with that object.”

A BRIEF HISTORY OF THE AMERICAN COLLEGE

The American College, a premier higher educational institution in South India, is known for its academic excellence, social relevance, and pioneering role in introducing innovations in collegiate education. It was originally established in 1881 at Pasumalai by American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Mission, under the leadership of Rev. G. T. Washburn, who became the first Principal of the College.

In 1909, during the tenure of the second Principal, Rev. W. M. Zumbro, the College was shifted to its present campus in Madurai. Over the years, the College steadily grew in stature, becoming independent of the Mission in 1934, when an autonomous Governing Council was formed to manage its affairs. The institution was initially affiliated to the University of Madras and, from 1966, came under the jurisdiction of Madurai Kamaraj University.

The American College was among the first set of colleges in India to be granted autonomous status by the UGC in 1977-78. It successfully implemented the Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) under autonomy, thereby setting a model for other institutions. Today, it stands as a testimony to over 144 years of service in education, research, and community development.

Presently, the College offers thirty-two undergraduate, twenty postgraduate courses and nine research centre offering Ph.D programmes in various disciplines in the Main Campus. The unique Study Centre for Indian Literature in English and Translation (SCILET), located in the Main Campus, has received global recognition.

To extend the reach of higher education to rural communities, the College established its Satellite Campus at Chathirapatti in 2006 and functionalised in 2015, offering fifteen undergraduate and three postgraduate courses. In addition, the College offers innovative vocational programmes such as B.Voc. and M.Voc. courses.

The American College was re-accredited (3rd Cycle) by NAAC in 2022 with Grade “A+” and a CGPA of 3.47 on a 4-point scale. The College is ranked 59 in 2025 NIRF. Its alumni include renowned scientists, intellectuals, administrators, corporate leaders, and statesmen, who have contributed nationally and internationally.

The College continues to maintain a vibrant campus life through its theatre groups, National Service Scheme (NSS), National Cadet Corps (NCC), Service Learning Programme (SLP), Green Management Programme (GMP), and Gender Studies Programme (GNS), reflecting its commitment to holistic education and social transformation.

The College is committed to internationalisation of education. It offers Exchange and Study Abroad programmes that help students develop global perspectives while staying connected to local realities.

The American College is dedicated to preparing generations of students to thrive in an increasingly interconnected world through a strong commitment to academic excellence, internationalization and global exposure.

XV CHOICE BASED CREDIT SYSTEM

The American College has been adapting itself to many changes in the curriculum. The global perspective of the college has also been a driving force to provide quality education to its students. Autonomy has provided a platform for each department to have their own departmental objectives and to design their own curriculum. CBCS empowers students to consciously choose a set of courses to meet their objectives. As a result of this, scholars with interdisciplinary background may emerge.

Intellectual depth and breadth characterize liberal arts and science undergraduate education. CBCS also allows students to cross the artificial boundaries of varied academic disciplines and enables them to get the insights of several disciplines bringing out the inherent interest and aptitude.

After two-year long deliberations, the faculty has brought out a version of the Choice Based Credit System that suits the needs and aspirations of The American College community. It is not just a change in the nomenclature but also a paradigm shift in the educational practices.

The following are some of the other expected outcomes of CBCS:

- To develop human resources to suit a wide range of career opportunities.
- To promote inter-departmental cooperation within the college for a better utilization of the existing infrastructure and human resources.
- To cross institutional barriers by way of transfer of credits among accredited institutions.

Learning Outcomes-Based Curriculum Framework (LOCF) (with effect from the academic year 2024-2025 onwards)

Vision statement of The American College extends beyond mere academic excellence towards aspiring to become a Christian higher educational institution of global standards and reputation. Since its inception, the institution has remained steadfast in its commitment to providing quality education while nurturing values deeply rooted in the Christian ethos. Founded on principles of adaptability and responsiveness, The American College has continually evolved to meet the ever-changing landscape of education. Autonomy, granted by the University Grants Commission (UGC) in 1977-1978, empowered the institution to pioneer innovative changes in its curriculum, aligning with both national policies and community needs. The implementation of the Choice Based Credit System (CBCS) demonstrates the institution's commitment to student-centred education. Through CBCS, the institution has been developing versatile human resources capable of navigating diverse career opportunities while promoting interdisciplinary collaboration and facilitating credit transfer across accredited institutions.

Absolutely, the idea that learning should transcend boundaries reflects a commitment to a more holistic and integrative approach to education. This philosophy emphasizes that knowledge isn't confined to discrete subjects or institutions, but rather flows across and integrates various fields and experiences. By breaking down disciplinary silos, learners can make connections between different areas of study, fostering deeper understanding and more innovative thinking. For example, combining insights from science, humanities, and the arts can lead to richer perspectives and problem-solving approaches. This approach also encourages learning beyond traditional classroom settings, incorporating real-world experiences, interdisciplinary projects, and collaboration. It aims to prepare students not just with specialized knowledge but with the ability to adapt, think critically, and apply their learning in diverse contexts.

Keeping this principle in mind, the institution has embraced a Learning Outcome-Based Curriculum Framework (LOCF), inspired by a global perspective. This framework aims not only to equip students with the necessary knowledge and skills but also to instil in them a sense of purpose and a commitment to service. Inspired by the motto, "Purificatus Non Consumptus" (Purified, Not Consumed), the curriculum framework reflects the institution's overarching objective: to cultivate individuals who are not only intellectually enriched but also morally upright and socially responsible. As the institution embarks on the journey towards student-centric teaching and learning, it remains guided by its enduring mission: to train students in the service of God and humanity, in harmony with Christian values, and pursuit of excellence in all endeavours.

XVII GENERAL DISCIPLINE & CONDUCT RULES FOR STUDENTS

1. Attendance and Academic Performance: Every student shall attend the classes regularly and strive to put the best effort to study well and show consistently good performance in Continuous and End-of-Semester Examinations.

- a. Separate set of rules governs the student attendance as given in Section XIX of the College Calendar. Students should carefully read them. Chronic absenteeism on the part of students will result in dismissal.
